O.K. I took their pictures the other day and will let you decide for yourself. Why they are good looking or not - after the war, for you know we can not send any pictures home, unless we go thru a bunch of red tape, so I have decided to keep mine until after the war and take them back with me. The big difficulty here is in getting films - in fact it is almost are simply grand to us. They think that the American soldiers are O.K. They do their best to help us to learn French and most of the younger people are very anxious to learn English. I sure do have some times learning the language, but am getting along fairly well, at that. There are a couple of real pretty French girls here in the same block where we are billeted and it is from them that I am getting most of my French - ahem! 78,
